Jane is an artist. She draws and paints pictures for magazines and books. She works at home, and she has a room just for working in. She usually works about eight hours a day, but sometimes she works more when she's in a hurry to finish a picture. She earns quite a lot of money from her work, but she doesn't have paid holidays. She loves her job because every day is different and she likes using her imagination, but sometimes it's stressful and lonely because she doesn't work with other people.
