

Dictation 1.16

Susan lives with her nine-year-old son Robert in a small flat in London. She works as a secretary in a big office in the city centre. On a typical day she gets up at seven o'clock and has breakfast. Then she wakes up Robert and helps him get ready for school. She drives Robert to school, and then she drives to the station, where she leaves the car and takes a train to her office. It is very expensive to take a car into the centre of London.

She works from ten o'clock to five o'clock. She doesn't stop for lunch, but she usually eats an apple or a banana at her desk at midday. After work she takes the train and then drives to her friend Jane's house. Jane has a daughter who is the same age as Robert and the children walk to Jane's house together after school.

In the evening Susan makes the dinner and then usually watches TV or chats with her friends on the Internet. She goes to bed at about midnight.
